Imagine the Possibilities

Heads Up - The Pat Penny Memorial Art Project

TGAA (Texas Glass Artist Association) hosted a call for Artist to participate in a judged art contest to support the Ladies of Legacy Foundation. Artist could work in any medium. Art work must include the use of a styrofoam head. The artists donated their art work to be auctioned for the charity after they are shown at exhibitions. The art work will be auctioned to help generate funds for brain and spinal cord tumor patients and their families. Their art work is available for public viewing during the month of May at local hospitals to help raise awareness, during Brain Cancer Awareness Month.

Ladies of Legacy Foundation

Ladies of Legacy is a non-profit foundation that will provide direct support for brain and spinal cord tumor patients and their families in dealing with medical concerns, as well as the emotional, practical and spiritual issues associated with the illness. The organization's goal is to create a better quality of life for patients and their families now and in the future.

Ladies of Legacy
Supporter Pin

The focus of the organization is on female brain tumor survivors; however since families come first for most women, it is also open to the survivors of male brain tumor patients. Ladies of Legacy is a partner with the Tug McGraw Foundation. Both Foundations have similar goals which are to help brain tumor patients and their families and to raise public awareness.

Heads Up - The Pat Penny Memorial Art Project

Pat's gift to us all was the art that came from her hands. Her inquisitiveness engulfed her, and her knowledge of all art forms expanded beyond normal confines. She embraced all things beautiful, from art glass to clay, from porcelain to fabric, from textiles to knitting, from precious metal sculpting to art welding. Her voracious appetite to explore all art forms guided her heart to learn all she could, experience all she could, and share with countless people around the world the glorious art pieces she produced. She could not keep the beauty of her mind to herself. Rather, she chose to teach others the incredible talents she possessed and cherished.

“A brilliant star faded from the sky and our earth has grown little darker with her loss.”
